With only seven days left before the opening of the Provincial Exhibition at the Willows, workmen are busily preparing for the many exceptional displays that are promised in every building this year. Entries to date have been well up to the standard.

There will be some of the finest horses and cattle ever seen at an exhibition in British Columbia, and in line with this section the poultry, pigeon, goat and rabbit shows, it is declared, will draw a bigger entry than in any former year.

ENCOURAGING PROSPECTS
Secretary W. H. Mearns, in speaking of the encouraging prospects for a highly successful exhibition, extends thanks to the district exhibitors and individual exhibitors, women's organizations and others who have given their support.

The Island Art and Crafts Society promise to have displays in the Art Department that will prove of great interest to thousands who visit the fair. Oil colors, water colors, china painting, modelling, wood carving, silversmith work and photography are among the classes.

The Women's Department is always among the most popular features of the exhibition, and this year promises to sustain its reputation. There are classes for girls of nine years of age and for ladies over sixty years. There are also classes for British Columbia-made wool and B.C. fur. Animals and animals' heads, mounted butterflies, insects, flowers, plants, grasses and ferns will be included in the Natural History department.

INDIAN EXHIBITS
Indian agricultural products and specimens of their carving in the form of carved totem poles and canoes in miniature will be shown in the Indian Department, which always proves a magnet to those interested. (Concluded on page 2.)

ATTACK EVIDENCE OF EXPERT WITNESS

State Counsel Seek to Upset Theories at Leopold-Loeb
Hearing in Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 11.—The state today sought to tear down the disorderly endocrine gland theory woven into the defence plea for mitigation of the punishment to be decreed in the sentence to be passed on Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold Jr. for kidnapping and murdering fourteen-year-old Robert Franks. Counsel spent the afternoon in an effort to impeach the testimony of the defence alienist by whom the idea was advanced.

FIFTY WITNESSES
Former friends, university instructors, servants in the Leopold and Loeb families, and prominent women, some of whom were pupils of Leopold in his high school class, are named on a list of fifty prospective witnesses announced by Mr. Crowe as having been summoned to testify that the youths are sane and constitute normal actors in what he has called "a perfect hanging case." The hearing may last four more days. This is the seventeenth day.

Toronto, Aug. 11.—The Prince of Wales is not to visit Ontario, except perhaps Ottawa, on his coming trip to Canada to spend a few weeks on his Alberta ranch.

The Canadian National Exhibition directors here wished to have him put in at least a day at the fair, but a definite though polite refusal has been received.

It is even said in some quarters the popular young man may not even pay an official visit to Ottawa. His trip to be strictly unofficial.

FOREST FIRE THREATENING IOCO AND 3,000,000 GALLONS OF OIL IN TANKS AS STRONG WIND BLOWS

Ioco, B.C., Aug. 11.—Fanned by a strong wind, a forest fire that started last night in timber at the rear of the townsite is threatening Ioco and the Imperial Oil Company's large tanks with destruction.

Unless the outbreak is extinguished soon heavy damage will result. Latest reports state the wind is driving the blaze southwest by south, in the direction of the town, where, in addition to many homes and other structures, the tanks of the Imperial Oil Company, storing approximately 3,000,000 gallons of oil, are situated.

A sudden shift of the wind to the East, while it would mean escape for Ioco, would bring disaster to the timber reserve of Thurston and Flavell, said to be the most valuable stand of timber on the coast.

WORLD ARMEN ARE TO CONTINUE FLIGHT

No Intention of U.S. Aviators to Abandon Attempt to Fly Home

Rask, Supply Ship, Breaks
Clear of Ice East of Greenland

Reykjavik, Iceland, Aug. 11.—There is no question of calling off the United States army world flight because of ice conditions around the shores of Greenland, according to a statement issued on board the cruiser Richmond, flagship of the convoying squadron. In the opinion of Rear Admiral Magruder, commander of the squadron, the flight will be completed successfully, barring possible accidents or unforeseen adverse weather.

THREE POSSIBLE COURSES
The aviators are faced with three possibilities in making their next hop. First, the cruiser Raleigh, by means of her seaplane, may find a safe landing haven for them on the Greenland coast; second, they may fly to Sogmagsalik Harbor, which is free of ice, provided the Raleigh's planes can take enough fuel to provide for the next lap. Third, they may attempt a non-stop flight from this port to Ivigtut, on the western coast of Greenland, or to a base near Cape Farewell, on the southernmost tip.

It was stated a few weeks ago in London that it was believed the only matter standing in the way of an official announcement of the appointment of Mr. O'Grady as Governor of Tasmania was the question of emoluments, in view of his not possessing the requisite private means to supplement the official salary of the Governor of Tasmania, £2,750.

In the economics section the formation of unemployment reserves was the subject treated by Professor J. R. Commons of the University of Wisconsin, and Prof. L. A. Bowley, University of London, Eng., who spoke on economic problems in British industry, giving an up-to-date review of the industrial situation in the old land dealing with the problems which confront the Government of the country in absorbing the unemployed into useful occupations.

Dr. H. C. Sherman of Columbia University told the chemists in one of the finest addresses which the section has heard that the length of life depended on vitamins.

CRYSTAL STRUCTURE
Sir William Bragg delivered his presidential address to the mathematical and physical science section on the analysis of crystal structure by X-Rays. Dramatization of Society Regeneration is Depicted in Capitol Theme This Week

Is Story Based on Popular Story; Presented in Picturesque Pekin, With Abundant Atmosphere and Color.

Readers of the Saturday Evening Post will recall that a few months ago there appeared in that publication a most unusual story by Lucy Stone Terrill, entitled "Face." The originality of its plot occasioned considerable comment and commendation. Paramount recognized it as exceptional screen material and bought the motion picture rights.

"Unguarded Women," which is scheduled to open at the Capitol Theatre to-night for a six days' run, is an adaptation of that story—the history of how a man of honor brings back to social esteem a girl whose love of gaiety makes her a society outcast. It is intensely dramatic, full of suspense, with a strong and fine love interest and a happy climax.

It was evidently the aim of the producers to leave no stone unturned, or rather, to leave no actor out of the cast who could successfully contribute to the logical interpretation of the story. The result is that we have an array of talent that should satisfy the most fastidious. Bebe Daniels, Richard Dix and Mary Astor are featured at the head of a superb cast that includes Walter McGrath, Frank Losee, Harry Mestayer, Joe King, Helen Lindroth and Donald Hall, all of them exceptionally fitted by training and temperament for their respective characterizations. To further insure a high-grade production, Alan Crosland was entrusted with the responsibility of directing the picture. Since Mr. Crosland has to his credit such screen successes as "Enemies of Women," "Under the Red Robe," "Three Weeks," etc., it is safe to predict that no one will find fault with the settings, costumes and backgrounds. Incidentally it may be of interest to mention that most of the action takes place in Pekin, China, a locale that is admittedly chockfull of atmosphere and color.

Music Lovers' Night at Capitol Monday Evening

The programme of music as arranged for Music Lovers' Night at the Capitol Theatre on Monday, is one that all music patrons will be glad to hear; also the different numbers to be rendered during the showing of the feature picture "Unguarded Women" will fit the picture in all respects.

In addition to the orchestral numbers to be rendered a number of solos will be played by A. V. Thomas, the popular Capitol organist.

Green Room Notes

Deems Taylor has completed the musical score of "Janice Meredith," the new motion picture in which Marion Davies is the star, and which will have its world premiere soon at the Cosmopolitan Theatre, New York City.

Mr. Taylor, who has written incidental music for a number of important stage productions, including "Beggars on Horseback" and "Lillom," and whose symphonic suite "Through the Looking Glass" has been featured by leading orchestras of the country, has composed, it is said, for "Janice Meredith" one of the most beautiful as well as most appropriate scores ever written for a motion picture.

Percy Hutchinson, who is to return to Canada next season under the direction of Theatrical Enterprises Ltd., the new Canadian producing firm, has been offered the leading role in the company which is to present last season's London success, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," in New York next Fall. Mr. Hutchinson has refused the offer, however, as he says that he prefers another visit with his many Canadian friends to all the inducements which the Broadway managers have to offer.

Robert C. Bruce, creator of the beautiful "Wilderness Tales," has finished one of his most impressive subjects, "The Facewell." It is an outdoor drama without actors, human or animal, and tells the devotion of an outdoor man to his beloved mountains, streams and the restless sea.

Charles Ray, famous for his American Boy characterizations, to be seen in September in "Dynamite Smith," first of a new series produced, as of old, under the Ince banner, and released by Pathe, when asked seriously what his greatest ambition was replied simply, "To make people happier."

Requests for concerts by the Newcastle Band have been pouring in so fast that an effort is being made to extend their stay in Canada from four to eight weeks. Present plans call for the band to arrive in Montreal September 14th and sail for Australia from Victoria on October 22, but it is hoped that arrangements can be made to change to November 15.

CHINESE GENERAL IS BANFF VISITOR

Li is Director of Government
Arsenals; He and Others
Going to Wembley

Banff, Alta., Aug. 11.—General Li, Director-General of the Chinese Government Arsenals and Munitions, accompanied by C. P. Hui, secretary to the Governor of Shanxi, and Hung Chung, manager of the Government Arsenals, are spending a week at Banff and Lake Louise en route to the British Empire Exhibition.

General Li, a tall, handsome specimen of the Northern Chinese and a man of great military dignity, expressed keen delight at the manner in which Chinese are being treated in Canada. Asked concerning the Oriental attitude towards Japan, General Li said he did not believe this law would ever lead to any trouble or general hard feeling between the Orient and the Occident, but he refuted press statements to the effect that the Japanese Government observed similar restrictions against Chinese entering Japan. Certain Japanese ports had been closed to Chinese, he said, but exclusion was not sanctioned by the Japanese Government.

China, said General Li, was going forward very slowly but substantially under republican government. Old customs and traditions which had held the country back for ages were fast giving way to modern progress, which would soon lead to a lasting understanding between China and all other civilized countries in the world. "I have been to Switzerland several times," said General Li, "but I have never seen anything equalling the beauty of these Rocky Mountains of Canada."

COLLEGE BUILDING DESTROYED BY FIRE

Queen's University, Kingston, Suffers Loss; Structure to Be Rebuilt

Kingston, Ont., Aug. 11.—Early yesterday morning fire destroyed the old medical building of Queen's University. In this building were the anatomical and pharmacological departments, besides the general offices and library. Insurance of $35,000 was carried, which will not meet half the loss. Rebuilding will start at once.

The structure destroyed became a medical building in 1880.

GEN. P. E. CALLES IS TO VISIT EUROPE

President-Elect of Mexico
Sails From New York;
Speaks of Oil

New York, Aug. 11.—Assurances that his administration would not be hostile to United States oil companies and other interests operating in Mexico were given yesterday by General Plutarco Elias Calles, President-elect of Mexico, upon his departure for Europe on the steamship Deutschland. The general, accompanied by a party of nine, including his two daughters, expected to spend three months in Europe.

"I am absolutely in favor of oil companies owning property in Mexico," said General Calles, "and there will be no disposition on the part of my administration when it takes office to take over the property of any American oil company. We welcome United States capital as well as other capital in the development of Mexico."

Referring to his address before officials of the American Federation of Labor at Atlantic City Saturday, General Calles said:

"I wish to develop the thought that the federations of the two republics should continue their splendid co-operation as well in the future as they did in the past. I was elected by the workers, by the labor people. I shall not forget that."

General Calles said he was not prepared to discuss the subject of resumption of payments of the Mexican foreign debt under the Lamont-De la Huerta agreement.

On the subject of prohibition, General Calles said he hoped he would see the day when Mexico would be dry. He also said he hoped to eliminate gambling along the border, through co-operation between the Mexican and the United States authorities.

The murder of Mrs. Rosalie Evans was purely an act of banditry and had nothing whatever to do with the agrarian question in Mexico, General Calles asserted.

MACLAREN ON WAY TO PRINCE RUPERT

British World Flight Party
Aboard Canadian Government Steamer Thiepval

Stowaway Found Aboard Vessel When Crew Coaling
at Dutch Harbor.

Dutch Harbor, Alaska, Aug. 11.—The Canadian Fisheries patrol steamer Thiepval, with Major Stuart MacLaren and his companions of the abandoned world flight party aboard, left here Saturday night for Prince Rupert, B.C.

When he arrived here Major MacLaren had little to add to his statement broadcast shortly after the aeroplane was wrecked. A dense fog prevailed upon his arrival at Nikolai. He attempted to rise above it and ultimately was forced to make a landing where high swells broke his machines to pieces before it could be beached.

KNOWS DIFFICULTIES
Major MacLaren expressed delight over the success of the United States fliers, saying he appreciated the hazards which they had overcome. All of the personnel of the MacLaren party are well, but Flight Sergeant Rewa, engineer of the plane, flew for hours with fever at 104 degrees due to a sunstroke at the Kurile Islands.

Major MacLaren appreciated very much the assistance rendered by the Americans during his flight through the Orient, which made the resumption of his flight at that time possible. Major MacLaren and the officers of the Thiepval were entertained during their stay here.

STOWAWAY FOUND
When the crew of the Thiepval began loading coal from the docks at Unalaska, a dust-covered stowaway was found in her bunkers. According to his story, he is a naturalized American of Russian nationality. He claims to have served in the United States navy and to have been captured in Russia, where $10,000 was taken from him and he was ordered to shift for himself.

aboard the Thiepval, hiding in the fuselage of the wrecked plane. The officers in charge of the Thiepval have wired Canadian authorities regarding the disposition of this case.

CAUSE OF SUDDEN LAKE STORMS PROVED

Chiefly Due to Absence of Swell, Says Dr. V. Cornish, Traveler

Toronto, Aug. 11.—The suddenness with which storms blow up on the Great Lakes can be directly attributed to the absence of swell on these inland seas, paradoxical as it may sound, in the light of the researches of Vaughan Cornish, D.Sc., authority on strategic geography and a well-known traveler, who addressed geographers at the British Association meeting here.

Dr. Cornish conducted experiments on the relative speed of wind and waves on a voyage which he made from Southampton to Trinidad. The speed of the wind was measured with an ordinary anemometer, and the velocity of the waves was determined indirectly by estimating their period. Due allowance was made for the speed and direction of the liner from which the observations were made.

DIFFERENCE ESTABLISHED
"The speed of the wind ranged from fourteen to twenty-four miles an hour," said Dr. Cornish. "That of the waves was in all cases less, the differences ranging from one to eight miles an hour."

This difference in velocity does not depend upon the absolute speed of the air currents, the scientists stated, but it was correlated with measurements which were made on the swell prevailing at the same time.

"When the swell and wave ran precisely in the same direction, as sometimes occurs in the region of the trade winds, and when no swell was recorded, the speed of the waves was nearly equal to that of the wind," Dr. Cornish stated.

"The growth of the waves in both height and length was hindered by a crossing swell, and it can be safely inferred that the general absence of swell is a sufficient reason for the rapid rise of waves upon enclosed seas."

INCREASE IS RAPID
"When the wind comes on to blow in the direction of the ocean swell with a speed greater than that of the swell, the growth of large steep waves is very rapid, doubtless more rapid than their growth from smooth water, but this occurrence is relatively rare in the North Atlantic," the geographer said.

Excepting in the rare cases when the swell and wind are in the same direction, the tendency is towards short and irregular wave fronts.

"Thus the swell would appear to act as a wave on the wave-forming influence of the wind, and in the case of the sudden storms and high waves which frequently occur on large lakes this restraining force is absent, and the wind can quickly work up waves cumulatively higher."

DIRECTION TESTS
The general run of the waves on the ocean shows the direction of the wind reliably, Dr. Cornish stated. The direction of a breaker out at sea is intermediate between that of wave and swell—the breaker being formed when the wind over-rides the swell. The practice of observing the direction of the curl on the water as a method of determining the direction of the wind, gives an erroneous result whenever there is a crossing swell, which is usually the condition on oceans," he warned.

A telegram arrived for a guest in a hotel while he was still asleep. "I can't, sorry," replied the waiter, a country lad, who had received very definite instructions as to his duties. "It's on a street, which won't be in-stilled under the door."

NEW UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE SCHEME

Chicago Clothing Manufacturers and Employees Contribute to Fund

Toronto, Aug. 11.—One of the most significant of recent experiments in unemployment insurance was described to the economics section of the British Association here today by Bryce M. Stewart, now of Chicago, Superintendent of the Employment Service of Canada. This experiment was initiated in May, 1923 under an agreement between the associations of men's clothing manufacturers in Chicago and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

"The union acquired control of the allocation of labor in the Chicago market, employing about 35,000 men, and a preferential agreement signed in 1919."

CENTRAL EXCHANGE
"Anticipating the adoption of unemployment insurance, the union in 1922 organized a central employment exchange, which plays an important part in the administration of the scheme."

"Under the plan each employee contributes 15% of his wages and the employer an equal amount. About eighty of the larger firms have individual house funds, but the contributions of the smaller firms are pooled. Employers who give regular employment are encouraged by a provision that when a house fund has accumulated an amount sufficient for the payment of the maximum benefit for two years, the contributions of the house and of the employees shall cease until the fund has been depleted to an amount sufficient for one year's benefit. The joint contributions for the whole industry in the year ended April 30, 1924, totalled slightly over $1,000,000."

"Administration is vested in four boards of trustees chosen by the employers and the union. The chairman, Professor John R. Commons of Wisconsin University, was appointed by both parties. He presides over the boards."

"Payment of benefit began May 1, 1924. Benefit is paid for part-time unemployment as well as for lay off, and the waiting period in each case is forty-four hours, which is the regular weekly working period. Workers on short time receive benefit for all time lost in excess of four hours in the week, every hour of overtime offsetting one hour of unemployment. The benefits are forty per cent of the full time wages, with $20 per week as a maximum, but not more than two and one-half weeks' benefit may be paid in either of the two working seasons, and not more than five weeks' benefits in the year.

TEMPORARY CUTTERS
"In the cutting branch of the trade, the incidence of unemployment is, chiefly upon a group of so-called temporary cutters. They constitute a flying squadron not attached to any house. A special fund has been established to meet the needs of these employees by using all the contributions of the permanent cutters. Permanent cutters receive benefits of one-third of the weekly wage, instead of forty per cent. They are limited to five weeks' benefit in the year and temporary cutters may receive ten weeks' benefit."

"The development of the plan," said Mr. Stewart, "is being closely watched by employers and trade unions in the United States. It has already been adopted in two or three other industries, and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers plan to extend it to other markets. It has given pause to the demand for a government scheme. The question arises, if future development will be along these lines or in the direction of the co-existence of some such plan of insurance by industry and a governmental system after the English model."

HARBOR BOARD PROPOSAL

THE subject of a harbor board has been referred to a committee of the Chamber of Commerce for investigation and report to the directors of that organization. Presumably the question eventually will be discussed by the entire membership because it is too important to be disposed of by the directors alone on behalf of the Chamber.

The committee is somewhat handicapped in its inquiry by the absence of any definite and detailed proposal. No bill to be submitted to Parliament authorizing the creation of a harbor board or commission has been placed before it. There are numerous harbor boards in Canada and the United States and each has its own peculiar powers and functions. Consequently, local investigation of the subject is restricted to the principle of the proposal in its relation to the necessities and conditions of this port.

In the light of these facts it is hard to understand the campaign which so hurriedly has been launched against the suggestion of a harbor board. To denounce the proposal in principle without regard to details in our judgment is to assail the best interests of this community, because if such a course means anything it is that there should not be efficient local direction of the millions of dollars worth of public port facilities at Victoria and Esquimalt, no local organization set up to develop business for them, no adequate steps by competent management to bring them into that intimate connection with Island development and export trade which is so urgently needed.

On the pressure of the people of Victoria the Dominion has expended an enormous sum on a breakwater and piers at Ogden Point. It is building at Esquimalt the largest drydock on the continent. It has numerous other port facilities at both harbors. It has extensive water front property admirably adapted to industries. Surely the time has come when some effective effort should be made by the people of this district to realize upon those valuable port assets, thereby supplementing what other interests are prepared to do. For years we have been importuning this government and that government, this railway corporation and that railway corporation and every other external institution which would listen to us, to do for us what we should at least try to do for ourselves.

Incidentally, may we point out that this is not a problem which concerns any single element of the community or any two or three interests, for that matter? It concerns the public as a whole whose money helped to provide those facilities. It concerns Saanich and Esquimalt and every other Island interest contiguous to these ports, since the proper management of our port facilities should promote the development of the resources of the Island within a considerable radius of this district.

Mr. C. P. W. Schwengers, President of the Chamber of Commerce, whose bona fides we, of course, do not question, has issued a lengthy memorandum attacking the idea of a harbor board for Victoria, and The Colonist, very blindly we think, supports his attitude. It can not be emphasized too strongly that Mr. Schwengers is not representing the Chamber of Commerce in this respect, since the Chamber has not dealt with the matter. Moreover, in view of the fact that a committee, appointed by Mr. Schwengers, is about to investigate the subject, his intervention at this stage strikes us as very inopportune. It is open to the construction that he is endeavoring by the pressure of publicity to influence the committee's deliberations and verdict and it, therefore, can not be very warmly welcomed by the committee.

Mr. Schwengers opposes the harbor board proposal on the ground that it will interfere with the projected establishment of an elevator and assembly plant at the Ogden Point piers by the Canadian National Railways, that it will drive away shipping and business by excessive port charges, and that it will involve the creation of an expensive organization for which shippers will have to pay.

There is no conflict between the elevator and assembly plant proposals and a proposal for appointing a body to manage our port facilities. Indeed, one should be an admirable complement to the other. Are we to assume that nothing else than has been proposed to date should be done to galvanize our extensive port assets into profitable activity? Our own impression is that a competent harbor board, commission, management, or whatever it might be called, would have established both an elevator and an assembly plant at the Ogden Point piers long ago if they were considered to be paying propositions. If they were not, there would be no sense in putting them there.

As to Mr. Schwengers' contention that the creation of a harbor board would involve an expensive body of highly-paid officials and excessive port charges, it is pertinent to inquire upon what he bases this alarmist belief. Nobody is asking for such a board. Nobody in his sober senses would advocate the creation of a condition which would drive shipping and business away from the port. Obviously, the character, powers and functions of such a body, whether it consisted of one or two able businessmen, would be determined in accordance with the conditions, necessities and resources of this community, not of Vancouver or Montreal. For that matter, the board might be entirely honorary as to salary with a competent manager under it. In any case we decline to believe that this part of Vancouver Island can not provide sound business management of its own port facilities without committing suicide.

THE NEW LEADER

NEITHER Liberals nor Conservatives were very surprised to learn that Mr. R. H. Pooley had been selected to lead the Opposition forces in the next Legislature. Of the material at the disposal of Saturday's caucus in Vancouver he was the most suitable for the important role of House leader. The member for Esquimalt is popular in his own constituency and as first lieutenant to Mr. Bowser for a number of years he has been able to acquire a fair amount of experience in parliamentary generalship. But Mr. Pooley himself would be the last to admit that the fit of the mantle which has descended upon his shoulders is anywhere near being a snug one.

As far as the general public has been advised there is nothing clear as to whether House leadership is to carry with it the leadership of the Party in the Province. When Saturday's meeting of the elected representatives was first announced it was specifically pointed out that the broader question was not of immediate importance and that the problem of the Party's direction outside the Legislature would be a matter for discussion at a representative gathering at a later date. There would be nothing particularly novel in this procedure under the special circumstances which have arisen and it is, therefore, reasonable to assume that Mr. Pooley has accepted the leadership of the Conservatives in the House on the understanding that if he acquires himself in manner pleasing to his followers he will be rewarded by the greater honor.

Consequently we take it that Mr. Pooley, to all intents and purposes, is now the leader of the provincial Conservative Party and that the conferring of the full title, beyond that of House leader, is merely a matter of form and will be regarded as a piece of routine business at a fuller gathering of the Party adherents at a later date. This at least is the only dignified way of dealing with the matter.

In his new role Mr. Pooley will be confronted with situations which will demand more astute House generalship than it has hitherto been necessary for his predecessor to employ. In view of the somewhat reduced margin with which the Government will meet the next Legislature the opportunities for parliamentary strategy will be more numerous than ever before. Mr. Bowser would have enjoyed such situations. It remains to be seen whether the member for Esquimalt can fill the bill.

MR. BEATTY IS RIGHT

MR. E. W. BEATTY agrees with those who have said that Canada is not as conspicuously in the public eye in Great Britain as she should be.

The President of the Canadian Pacific Railway has expressed the sentiments of many Canadians who have visited the Old Country during the last twelve months. Residents of this Dominion would get precious little news of their native or adopted land while on the other side of the Atlantic if it were not for the newspapers sent to them by their friends and relatives in Canada. With the exception of The Daily Mail, which publishes a column of Empire paragraphs every day, Canadian news for the most part is limited to one or two Reuter cables and an occasional dispatch from a special correspondent when events of exceptional importance break. Of news dealing with current events, political and commercial, there is generally a woeful absence.

Early last April the Empire Press Union commenced a series on monthly luncheons to which overseas newspapermen are invited. At the initial gathering a very distinguished Australian journalist roundly scored the Old Country press as a whole for its apparent disregard of happenings in the Empire. Viscount Burnham, who was chairman on that occasion, appeared to be struck with the importance of these comments and it may be that the interchange of view between Dominion and Old Country journalists, which these luncheons afford, will have a beneficial effect.

It is obvious, of course, that each of the Victoria newspapers publishes more of Old Country news in a day than all the dailies of London publish of Canadian news in a week.

Now that Mr. Pooley has risen to the House leadership of the Conservative Party we presume he will conveniently forget about prune juice and non-inflammable brandy.

"My impressions of Saturday's gathering." This is the title of a review by Mr. Bowser which, in newspaper parlance, is a story that will not "leave the hook."

Some members of the crowd which met Premier Herriot in Paris on Saturday cried "Down With England!" This is not the cry which greeted the British Expeditionary Force on August 8, 1914.

Dr. Frank Crane on
"Club Des Cent"

(Copyright)

A FEW years ago a club was founded in France called the Club des Cent which, as its name shows, had a membership strictly limited to one hundred, and was devoted to keeping up the tradition of French cooking and encouraging good hotel-keeping.

This organization has, since its foundation, undertaken a regular survey of France and it is reckoned that each of its members has already traveled, by motor car, twenty-five thousand miles in search of good and comfortable inns.

In fact the Club des Cent is not only ready to patronize palaces and good-glass hotels, but also the most modest village inn, provided it is scrupulously clean and provided also that the cooking is good.

Some of the mottoes of the Club are worth looking over. They are:

"Hotel keepers, give us good attendance and you will become rich. Give us bad attendance and it will be the worse for you."

"Coffee made in advance is but bad coffee."

"Keep your cheese under a glass cover. Feed your guests, not the flies."

"No chemical extracts in cooking. In the preparation of meals the Club des Cent knows no other factory than the kitchen."

Every year this club awards two gold medals to the chefs and cooks who, after a searching inquiry, have proved worthy of such a distinction.

This year the Club des Cent awarded its gold medals to M. Jean Leer, chef of the France, and M. Jean Lindauer, chef of the Paris. These medals were presented to their recipients at a breakfast, or luncheon given on board the France, when M. J. del Pias, the president of the great French shipping company presided, and when the members of the Club des Cent and their friends gathered in force to do homage to these chefs who had so successfully initiated many travelers into the delights of real old-fashioned French cooking.

The Seven Years' War

THE last great struggle between French and English for the mastery of the North American Continent, called ordinarily now the Seven Years' War, but known to people of that time as the Great War, began in May, 1756. Unofficially, however, it had been going on for at least two years previous in the forests of America, while the fiction of peace was kept up in Europe. The events of the Summer before, 1755, had taken the form of a regular campaign in which the British had suffered a terrible reverse, that of General Braddock's army of regulars and militia which was ambushed by French and Indians and cut to pieces not far from Fort Duquesne on the site of the modern city of Pittsburgh in Pennsylvania. Now, in 1756, both parent nations in Europe hurried out reinforcing regiments and field officers of hussars, the Marquis de Montcalm and the Chevalier de Levis from France to Canada; the Earl of Loudoun and General Webb to the English Colonies.

In the Summer of 1755 Governor Shirley of Massachusetts, stepping up from second-in-command to commander-in-chief of the fortress after General Braddock's death, had planned to capture the French Fort Niagara, at the mouth of the Niagara River on Lake Ontario, but when he had arrived with his small army of less than two thousand at Oswego on the south shore toward the eastern end of Lake Ontario, he found that the French had learned of his plans from papers captured in Braddock's baggage, and had hastened a force equal to his own into garrison at Fort Frontenac.

In the early Summer of 1756 Shirley was superseded in command. The Earl of Loudoun abandoned Shirley's scheme of seizing control of Lake Ontario, and concentrated his forces, slowly and with infinite friction between the various colonial governments, assembling at Albany, at Fort Edward on the upper Hudson River, and at Fort William Henry at the southern end of Lake George, for a movement against Canada by way of Lake Champlain and the Richelieu River. At Ticonderoga, where Lake George empties into Lake Champlain, Montcalm opposed this concentration with three thousand French troops. From here his Indians harassed the English all over the upper country and brought information of the unreadiness of their forces.

Montcalm suddenly decided on a brilliant stroke. Leaving his trusted second-in-command, the Chevalier de Levis, in charge at Ticonderoga, secretly and swiftly he journeyed to Montreal, which he reached on July 19, held a conference with the Governor the Marquis de Vaudreuil, and then left for Fort Frontenac on July 21 with thirteen hundred regulars. At Fort Frontenac, eight days later, he assembled his force, regulars, Canadian militia, and Indians, altogether a little over three thousand, sent an advance party of militia to the site of the present Sackett's Harbor, twenty-five miles southward across the lake, whither he followed shortly with the main body.

On August 9 he set out from Sackett's Harbor, and moving his troops in flat-bottomed boats, guarded by a strong force of militia, under cover of the dark reached the landing-place, a mile and a half east of Oswego, at midnight on August 10. It was in the early morning of August 11 that the British garrison discovered the proximity of the French, too late, for the siege was already begun.

THERE were three fortress works at Oswego—the old one on the west shore at the mouth of the Oswego River, walled on three sides, but open to the water; a new one of palisades, called Fort Ontario, on the heights immediately across the Oswego from the first and only four hundred yards east of it; and the third, called Fort George, a ramshackle affair to the west of the main fort.

Three days were occupied by the French in getting their batteries into position against Fort Ontario. Almost as soon as these guns opened Colonel Mercer, commanding Oswego, called in the garrison. Fort Ontario, for it could not withstand artillery fire. The French moved their batteries across the heights and poured shot into every cranny of the main fort lying perfectly open and unprotected on this side. This could not last long, and when Colonel Mercer was killed by a cannon ball, the place surrendered. Sixteen hundred prisoners, great number of cannon and quantities of stores as well as five small armed vessels and two hundred flat boats, were taken. Montcalm protected with great difficulty the prisoners from the Indians' savage excitement and avoided a massacre. The French burned the place completely and sailed away on August 21. The reaction of the British on the French was a mixture of amazement and depression. The reinforcements which the Earl of Loudoun was sending to Oswego retreated. England and English America realized that there was now a real general in Canada.

The annual Cordova Bay regatta will be staged on Wednesday. A fine list of entries have been sent in for the numerous events, and it is expected that competition will be keen. There will be a fine prize list including the Norris trophy. The field events will start at 1.30 o'clock.

The Norris cup, which is a perpetual trophy, was won by Norris Bros. in memory of their father, Fred Norris, who won the race in 1921. It is the prize for the men's single dinghy race over a 200 yards course.

Another fine trophy is the Little Arctic cup prize for the 100 yards men's swimming race, open. Last year's winner, Wellington walked off with the prize, and he will be competing again on Wednesday.

A number of novelty events will also be put on, including raft races, upset canoe racing, and in the evening a fine dancing program has been arranged at the Little Arctic and McMoran's.

The children from the Protestant Orphanage will be the guests of Mrs. and Dorothy Pendray at their Summer home for the regatta.

success in scholarship examination may depend upon it."

TO HIGH SCHOOLS

"Transference from a primary school are generally arranged after a scholarship examination in educational attainments, such as arithmetic or English," said Dr. Burt.

"Examinations of this traditional type have recently been supplemented by group tests in Great Britain, and they are already in wide use."

Examinations in which academic attainment only is considered are particularly incomplete in the case of those proposing to enter trade schools, the scientist pointed out. "Too much stress is likely to be placed on attainments in English or arithmetic, and a misleading result obtained," he said.

"Intelligence tests, especially those of a performance type, are of much greater value."

VOCATIONAL WORK

"Similarly, every opportunity should be taken to discover whether there are special aptitudes, and if the child already gives promise along vocational lines this should be taken into consideration."

Thus under the scheme advocated by Dr. Burt, which has already been found worth while in England, the usual high school entrance examination would be supplemented by psychological tests for general intelligence, any exhibition of manual skill would be taken into account, and there would be a third factor considered in the search for innate suitability for a particular type of profession, and the subsequent education could be modified so as to give full scope to these latent abilities.

Halifax, Aug. 11.—Representatives of the British Navy, United States War Mothers and Canadian Federal and Provincial Governments, as well as scores of Canadian societies, participated yesterday in the unveiling of the Cross of Sacrifice erected recently by the Imperial War Graves Commission on the foreland of Point Pleasant Park at the entrance to the Northwest Arm here. Vice-Admiral Sir Frederick Field, commander of the British Special Naval Service Squadron, now in port here, unveiled the cross, which is dedicated to the memory of those members of the Royal Canadian Navy, Royal Canadian Volunteer Reserves, Canadian Expeditionary Force and Canadian Mercantile Marine who lost their lives at sea by enemy action, disaster or illness, while serving in the Great War.

SCIENTISTS NOT POSTED ON WOMEN'S BOBBED HAIR FAD

Milady's Whims and Caprices Are Beyond Wizards of World

Toronto, Aug. 11.—There are few questions troubling the mind of man which remain unanswered through scientific deduction or the exercise of intellectual acumen; in fact, among the hundreds of famous scientific experts and wizards who radiate their store of knowledge for the benefit of the world at large from their present center of activity at the University of Toronto, almost pertaining to science can be obtained. They can offer a plausible answer to the question of which was first, the hen or the egg; they can talk on relativity in a manner which would confound Einstein himself; they can trace the electrons in the atom, or photograph the sun while the earth whirled through space at a speed of thousands of miles a second; they can even explain the atmospheric whims of a Canadian Summer, but the great question of the age which concerns femininity from almost the cradle to the grave and which permeates every state of society and has almost shattered the serene tenor of domesticity remains unanswered.

to the question of which was first, the hen or the egg; they can talk on relativity in a manner which would confound Einstein himself; they can trace the electrons in the atom, or photograph the sun while the earth whirled through space at a speed of thousands of miles a second; they can even explain the atmospheric whims of a Canadian Summer, but the great question of the age which concerns femininity from almost the cradle to the grave and which permeates every state of society and has almost shattered the serene tenor of domesticity remains unanswered.

No scientist has yet been able to answer this question, propounded daily by flapper and matron alike. "How bobbed hair came to stay."

Asked to-day for an opinion, several of the world's most renowned scientists merely shrugged their shoulders in indication that the question was beyond them.

"That is something which the mind of man is unable to answer," said a famous Britisher who sports a long chin. "Women, themselves do not know. How should I?"

"Only time can answer your question," said another, who admitted being a family man, and that he "jolly well liked the bob."

"We've had quite a time in England," you know," he said, "and I think it is more epidemic there than in Canada. However, from what I have seen since coming to Canada your Canadian girls look rather well with the bob."

MEXICAN GIRLS KEEP IN FASHION

Mexico is Americanized, Jazzed, Motorized and Bobbed, Says Noted Tenor

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Flapperism has taken the place of the delightful romance of old Mexico, Jose Mojica, Chicago civic opera tenor, said Saturday upon his arrival here from a visit to Mexico City. Guitars, once played only in jazz orchestras, Spanish combs have been laid away and the girls are all regular patrons at the barber shops. The bars still remain on the windows of the old houses, the tenor said, but the doors are either unlocked or daughter carries her latch-key.

"The old life in Mexico City is gone now," the tenor said, "and Mexico is Americanized, jazzed, motorized and bobbed."

WELCOME AT BANFF
 Banff, Aug. 10.—Banff afforded a full day's programme for the 200 teachers en route to the annual meeting of the Canadian Teachers' Federation, many of whom are making the trip through the Canadian Rockies for the first time. The Banff Springs Hotel, with its cosmopolitan population of globe trotters, was the headquarters for the day.

Visitors were made to the Johnston Canyon on the Banff-Windermere highway, to the Alpine Club camp and to the Cave of the Winds, and the sulphur baths, where an impromptu swimming gala was in progress.

The teachers drank of the springs and in the evening a motor drive took in Tunnel Mountain with its panoramic views of the town and the Bow River, the Spray Falls and the Rocky Mountains (a tea-chance where many species, including a new family of Scotch trout, are kept, was of much interest to the visiting teachers.)

A dance in the evening, promenade on the terrace for those who appreciated moonlight scenery and a return to the hotel for waiting for them completed the day.

Lake Louise was the next stop.

Social Service League Meeting

At the monthly meeting of the Social Service League on Friday afternoon Miss Snyder, the general secretary, gave a short report of the National Conference of Social Work recently held in Toronto, and to which Miss Snyder was one of only two delegates from British Columbia.

The total number of registered delegates was 3,059, of whom 890 were Canadians. This National Conference for the honor of entertaining which the small group of Canadian social workers contended at Washington last year, has challenged the attention of the general public and commanded wide interest. Its results should be far-reaching, for it has given to Canadians already engaged in social work a deepened interest, has stimulated a number of outsiders to volunteer for service in the ranks of social workers, and has proved to the reading public the scope and function of the profession of social work.

At a later date when Miss Snyder gives a more lengthy report it is hoped that many will hear it, for only the few seem to know of the splendid work being so quietly but effectively carried on by the Social Service League of this city. One unit of a great National Conference having for its object the up-building and uplifting of the citizenship of the state.

COUNCIL TO SIT THIS EVENING

Electric Wiring By-law May Be Introduced Shortly

Business for the City Council meeting to-night promises to be routine in character. An important by-law consolidating the electric wiring regulations of the city, which have been much to the front in the courts recently, has been prepared, but it is doubtful if it will be ready for the meeting.

Water leases for frontages on the harbor, a complaint arising out of the recent daily cases, and similar questions are on the agenda paper.

Outside the council business, however, several matters will occur next week at the City Hall of importance. The civic assessment notices for 1925 will be issued on August 14. Citizens will have until ten days prior to October 1 in which to lodge appeals, that date being the statutory one for the sitting of the Court of Revision.

As there has been a change in the percentage of improvements to be taxed, in accordance with the policy adopted in May, there is a certainty that the alteration will be reflected in increased appeals at the forthcoming court.

Another important subject will be the issuance to the citizens of their tax notices for 1924, of which to date $261,542 has been already liquidated in pre-payments by taxpayers.

Inability to deal with the surface drainage projects of Bowker Creek, and the Pemberton Meadows, combined with a practical exhaustion of the street improvement fund, has greatly reduced the amount of committee work to be done by the aldermen, and probably there has not been so little construction doing for several years.

In view of the approach of the annual convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities at Penticton in the first week of next month, it is expected the Council will, on Monday, give some instructions to its legislative committee with regard to the preparation of recommendations from Victoria to the convention.

FINDS VICTORIA IS A WELL KNOWN CITY

A wider knowledge of Victoria throughout the United States and Canada was noted by W. E. Ditchburn, Commissioner of Indian Affairs on his return from Ottawa to Victoria after an extensive trip through Canada and the United States. Mr. Ditchburn freely commented on the difference he had noted on this trip and other trips when speaking of Victoria and Vancouver Island. It was not necessary to explain where the island was on this occasion, he said. It was well known to most people. They both knew it and were interested in it, and throughout the West as far as Winnipeg, and Chicago on the other side of the border, there were many inquiries of a business nature, particularly in regard to residential property.

Monkey Business Halts Traffic on Saanich Highway

These were monkey-business galore at Hamsterley Lakeside at Elk Lake Thursday night.

It all started when Mrs. D. E. Whittaker, Richardson Street, looked too closely into the cage of Jessie, the monkey, who snapped and started to have fun bending them up. Mr. Pease and others came rushing to rescue the glasses. But when they opened the top of the cage to get the glasses, it was Jessie that came out.

She dashed across the dance floor and jumped on one boy's head. Then she sat up on the top of the open-air cafe tables and played with the sweet peas which were there as a bouquet.

When things began to look too hot for her, she took to the road, and for fifteen or twenty minutes there was great dashing up and down as the monkey hopped along the fence and climbed around automobiles and people in sight. The excitement seemed to spread immediately to all the boys along the road, people gathering from everywhere to see the fun. While Jessie was cutting up her antics, traffic on the Saanich Highway was suspended.

Finally, little Freddie Pease matched his wits against those of Jessie and won. With a handful of raisins and raspberries he approached her as she was sitting on the fence laughing at the crowds. The bright color of the food attracted her and while she was concentrating on a good feed he caught her.

Premier Oliver with friends arrived a short time afterwards for a party at the Lakeside, but they were just too late to be in on the monkey business.

E. A. Mills, of Oakland, Cal., also held a party there the same evening. He said it was the best fun he had had for a long time.

SOMETHING NEW IN TOURIST TRAVEL

Party of Influential Britishers Come to Inspect Under Personal Guidance

Something unusual in touring parties is that now in the city headed by L. F. Leonhardt, a member of the London staff of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who is conducting a party of thirty-two persons drawn from professional and business life in the Old Country.

It is the second season of an effort to introduce English people to the Summer vacation in Canada. Last year the initial effort was made to complete the tour through the country in five weeks. That proved too much of a rush and compelled the omission of a number of points which ought to be seen. The party which is actually the second which has come to the Pacific Coast. Now it has been decided to extend the tour to seven weeks.

The party journeyed out by way of Montreal, Toronto, the Great Lakes, Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Edmonton, Calgary and Vancouver, and will return by way of the Crow's Nest Pass, Calgary, Winnipeg, Ottawa and the Atlantic seaboard.

Included in the party are several business people, and from an investment standpoint Canada will certainly benefit. The groups include residents of Newcastle, Lancashire, Birmingham, South Wales and London, who are making careful inquiries. Some are prominent people in their own localities, and one, poultry fanciers will be interested to know is the "Yrardod King" of the Old Country.

They are all particularly impressed with British Columbia, which has taken first favor with them among the provinces so far visited. The party arrived Saturday afternoon and will leave again to-day for the Malahat.

It is expected, Mr. Leonhardt said, that the C.P.R. will endeavor to send another party of a similar character here this season.

FORESTRY BRANCH LECTURE TO SCOUTS

Gillwell Camp Opens at Col- wood With Mainland Repre- sentation

Six Victoria scoutmasters are taking the Gillwell training camp syllabus at Colwood, under Rodney C. Wood, Dominion Camp Chief. There are thirty-two scouts in camp, drawn from many different centres in the province. Through the cooperation of the Forestry Branch, Provincial Department of Lands, J. P. Melrose will lecture to the campers on forest subjects.

The Gillwell course is a specialized form of higher training for scouts, in which Rodney Wood has played the role of missionary from the world headquarters of the movement. The present camp is the first of its kind to be held on Vancouver Island.

LOS ANGELES BISHOP HERE

Interesting Link in His Catho- dral With Churches of Old Country

To associate Los Angeles with the cathedrals of the Old Country and thereby mark the historical connection between the Protestant Episcopal Church and the Established Church in England has been one of the aims of the Rev. Joseph N. Johnson, Bishop of Los Angeles, who is visiting the city after an interval of nineteen years. His Lordship, who has held that important post for twenty-nine years, has been able, through the fortunate sale by the diocese of a piece of real estate to see the completion of a cathedral church in the southern Gothic style.

In that church, he explained to The Times, he had been embodying the collections of fifteen years by incorporating in the fabric pieces of tile and brick and so on from representative churches in the Old Country, including examples from Holy Trinity Stratford-on-Avon (where Shakespeare is buried), Bradford-on-Avon, a Saxon church, Winchester Cathedral and similar historic edifices in England. This, he thinks, forms an interesting link with the past and in a new country associates the cathedrals of the Pacific seaboard with those of the mother church.

Dr. Johnson commends the great improvements which have taken place in Victoria since his former visit. He arrived on Saturday afternoon and will make a short stay on Vancouver Island.

REPUBLICANISM NOT STRONG IN BERLIN

"Constitution Day" There a Failure; Many Flew Flag of Old Empire

Berlin, Aug. 11.—"Constitution Day," as it was outwardly observed in Greater Berlin yesterday, once more suggested that in Berlin Germany is a republic without republicans.

The sturdy efforts of the champions of democracy to turn the fifth anniversary of the adoption of the Weimar Constitution into a rousing demonstration for the young republic, and a militant challenge to the Nationalists and Bavarian Fascists met with only sluggish response in Berlin, where the republican colors were only sparsely displayed and a scant 5,000 men, women and children joined in a public parade. Numerous private premises flew the old monarchical colors, seemingly in defiant challenge to the republican standard.

When Walter Luney and his family went to their Summer home at Langford Lake for the week-end, they found that burglars had been in and had gone through nearly everything in the house. The raid had apparently been made some time Friday.

The burglars had defied a trained watch-dog which had been left on guard at the house while the family was away. It is thought that the dog was forced away while the robbers broke in. The animal returned to his guard before the family arrived, however.

THORNTON SEEING PEACE RIVER AREA

Head of C.N.R. Impressed by His First Survey of That District

(Special to The Times)

Grande Prairie, Alta., Aug. 11.—The first visit of a chief railway executive to the Peace River country is now being made. Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railway, left Edmonton on a special train Saturday night, accompanied by his chief executive engineering and traffic officials.

At Lesser Slave Lake he was met by a party headed by Rev. A. White, Anglican missionary, who has been over thirty years in the country. There a fishing company, who were conducting operations on the lake port aboard several cases of delectable whitefish, for which this body of water is famous, was met. It shipped over 1,500,000 lbs. last year. Most of this fish goes to United States markets, the company doing a business of 100,000 lbs. annually.

ELEVATOR ERECTED

At Fahler, a thriving French-Canadian settlement has cleared a large area of land of light scrub with which it was covered, and at present, a few miles farther south, a small elevator has been erected.

From this settlement a deputation, headed by Father Calais, who won the Croix de Guerre in France, and Father Josse, waited on President Thornton, who chatted to them in their native language to the great delight of the crowd.

At Smoky the need of a ferry across the large stream of that name was emphasized, the settlers being compelled to swim their cattle over a very broad and swift river to reach shipping facilities.

Most of the morning the settlers were through country where the land was of excellent quality, though much of it is muskeg or covered with poplar growth. Some good meadows and fine out fields were seen at High Prairie.

LONG DRIVES

The Peace River country proper was not reached until midday. The reception by the people of Grande Prairie was therefore deferred. The party was awakened, however, at the reception at Grande Prairie, where a fleet of motor cars driven by people of the town ready to take them on a drive to the hotel, where they were already being waited for.

To-day's itinerary includes the Peace River country and the British Columbia section, which will be surveyed as well as the oil fields which have already been somewhat prospected by the Imperial Oil Company, which captures its well after a heavy flow of gas had been met.

To-morrow a longer drive will include the Dominion Experimental Farm at Beaver Lodge, Brainerd, Webley and Lake Saskatchewan, returning to Grande Prairie, where a reception and banquet will be held. Wednesday will be devoted to a similar tour of the country in which is included Spirit River, Duvagan and Peace River, where a meeting is to be held in the evening. The return to Edmonton is set for Thursday afternoon.

A QUICK SURVEY

While only a superficial survey of the country has yet been possible it is perhaps best expressed in what Sir Henry Thornton told the people of Grande Prairie yesterday. The farther he went the better he liked it. The country surrounding Grande Prairie is similar to Northern Alberta, a flat, level land being marked by clumps of trees and marked by rank herbage.

McLEAN MAY BE HEAD OF RAILWAY BOARD

Man Who Has Been Member of Body Since 1908 May Succeed Carvell

Ottawa, Aug. 11 (Canadian Press)—The death of Hon. F. B. Carvell, chairman of the Board of Railway Commissioners, adds another to the growing list of vacancies which the Government will have to fill sooner or later.

Although there is no pressing need for haste in filling the vacancy on the Railway Commission as there remain five members headed by a joint assistant Chief Commissioner S. J. McLean, who has been on the commission since 1908, conjectures as to the Government's choice are already being made. It is rumored in some quarters that the appointment will go to some prominent member of the judiciary, but there is at present no indication as to who will be chosen.

The position is one which should, of course, be held by one who has made a study of the problems which arise in connection with the operation of railways in Canada.

McLEAN MENTIONED

It is suggested that the Government may elevate Assistant Chief Commissioner McLean to the post of Chief Commissioner and perhaps advance another of the present commissioners to the post which he vacates. Dr. McLean is said to be qualified for the highest position on the board. He is credited with having drafted the legislation under which five members headed by a joint assistant Chief Commissioner S. J. McLean, who has been on the commission since 1908, conjectures as to the Government's choice are already being made. It is rumored in some quarters that the appointment will go to some prominent member of the judiciary, but there is at present no indication as to who will be chosen.

FIGHT FANS GET SOME EXCITEMENT.—Wild scene at the finish of the bout when the referee declared Tunney winner on a technical knockout in the fifteenth round with Des Camps, manager of Carpenter, with sponge in hand, standing close to the beaten battler, whose seconds were also in the ring. Carpenter, who claimed that he was fouled in the preceding round, collapsed just after his picture was taken without being struck. Only fourteen seconds of the round had elapsed. In the bottom panel Carpenter, Tunney and Referee Andy Griffin are looking pretty for the picture man before hostilities commence.

THRILL MURDER JUDGE FEARLESS; BORN IN ENGLAND.—The big outstanding figure in the Leopold-Loeb murder is Chief Justice John R. Caverly of Cook County Criminal Court, Chicago, who is presiding at the trial and who accepted the pleas of guilty to the kidnapping and murder of Robert Franks from Nathan F. Leopold, Jr. and Richard Loeb. Justice Caverly was born in England sixty-three years ago. He has a long and enviable record both as a city attorney and as a magistrate since coming to this continent. As attorney for the city of Chicago in 1907 he broke up a ring of grafters who had mulcted the city but of nearly $4,000,000. It was he, after he had mounted the bench, who sentenced to the House of Correction the notorious Eddie Jacobson, called "Eddie the Immune," who had boasted for years that he could not be convicted. If Justice Caverly should decide after hearing the mitigating evidence that the defense that their punishment should be heavy, there will be few who will question the justice of his decision. Such is the confidence Chicago has in the chief justice of its criminal court. This picture was taken of him on the bench during the trial.

A STORY WITHOUT WORDS

"Covered Wagon" Represented Remarkable Labor to Gather Data on Early Plains History

Tremendous Difficulties Were Overcome in Filming Story of Prairie Schooners Which Pushed Westward in Face of Peril by Indians, and Animals;
Now at Royal.

If it were possible to take behind the scenes the twenty million motion picture fans so that they might gain a slight conception of the tremendous task involved in making an epic picture such as "The Covered Wagon," which is the attraction at the Royal Victoria Theatre to-day and all this week, giving two performances daily at 2.30 and 8.30, it would disprove the unjustified claim that no motion picture producers are satisfied with makeshifts and are careless of detail.

When Famous Players-Lasky Corporation determined upon the huge task of translating to the screen Emerson Hough's novel, "The Covered Wagon" as a Paramount picture, it was with a full knowledge of what was entailed, it meant weeks of preparation, painstaking research, gigantic expenditure and a responsibility almost unequalled in the history of the films.

James Cruze, producer of "The Old Homestead," was given the task of making the photo-drama. A staff of fifty or more experts was assigned him, and immediately the preliminary work of research and location finding was entered upon. Nine states—California, Utah, Nevada, Idaho, Wyoming, Montana, Oregon, New Mexico and Arizona—were combined for locations and data, material and "properties."

RESEARCH WORK

Meanwhile the costuming department was preparing for the immense number of period garments to be worn—plainsmen, trappers, Indians, guides, emigrants, scouts, cattlemen, drivers, etc.—all must be represented. The Research Department was busy collating data. State Historical Societies were appealed to and among those who answered were A. E. Sheldon, superintendent of the Nebraska State Historical Society, who supplied valuable photographs and data about the Oregon trail in that state; Ennis G. Anderson, State Historian of Wyoming, gave advice and references regarding Fort Bridger and other historic forts in Wyoming. So it came from all quarters until the pile of material began to assume formidable proportions.

Then Mr. Cruze, himself, went to Nevada and Utah, which had been settled upon largely as the most promising spots whereon to film the scenes for the play. With Otto Meek, owner of the Baker Ranch, of probably 200,000 acres, largest in Nevada if not in the world—located in the Snake Valley—arrangements were made whereby it might be used as the principal location. It contains a great lake which it was decided could be banked and an outlet formed to create a river which should provide the torrential stream which would later be forced by the wagon trains, every animal being obliged to swim as in the actual experiences of 1848-9.

How C. Ferguson Went Into Motion Pictures Himself

Writer Won Leading Part in
"A Gentleman of Leisure"
At Pantages

"No we don't care how much experience you have had on the legiti-mate stage—we don't need any actors
—but can you write?"

The question was put to Casson
Ferguson, a well known Paramount player, by the Chicago motion picture producer from whom he sought a chance to become a motion picture actor.

"What? Didn't I tell you I was really looking for work as a writer?"
and young Ferguson shifted his hopes at once to the only possibility of entry into the alluring industry.
After convincing them that he would make a wonderful scenario writer, he was turned loose on a pile of 5,000 manuscripts, bought in those days at $5 apiece, to fit together some ideas to make a play. He was supposed to write a three-reel melodrama a week.

At the end of the first interval he turned in a photoplay to the producer, who looked it over, pronounced it good, but written for an entirely different type of leading man than the one they were using—much more fitted for a juvenile lead.

The employer stormed about, wondering what he would do, when he chanced to note that the part fitted Ferguson perfectly, as the latter had secretly hoped he would.

Of course, Ferguson modestly dis-claimed any ambition to become an actor, but agreed to fill in, which he did with such ability that the old leading man was discharged, and Casson Ferguson's screen career had begun brilliantly.

He now has an important part in
"A Gentleman of Leisure," a Paramount comedy-drama starring Jack Holt, which is on view at the Pantages Theatre.

Struggles of Picture Star to Win Distinction

Neil Hamilton, in "The Side Show of Life," Has Interesting Career

A detailed story of the life of the youthful Neil Hamilton, who plays the role of Charles Verity-Stewart in the Herbert Brenon production for Paramount, "The Side Show of Life," featuring Ernest Torrence and Anna
Q. Nilsson, and due at the Dominion Theatre to-night, would read like one of Horatio Alger's books on the country boy who made good.

Born in Lynn, Mass., Hamilton
after completing his regular schooling, spent three years in a theological seminary and then cast about for a job, but could find nothing suitable. He finally drifted to the theatrical section of New York City and bravely presented himself at the stage door of a well-known theatre and asked for a job. When asked what he could do Hamilton said he could act, change scenery, take care of the "props" and several other things. Whoever it was that gave him his first job took Hamilton at his word, for the next night he was on the stage appearing as an extra.

When not before an audience Neil was helping shift scenery, carrying trunks around and assisting in setting the stage. For this work Neil was handed $10 at the end of each week. But he refused to become discouraged, reasoning correctly that he was getting a wealth of experience that would be valuable to him at some future time.

The show in which Hamilton was appearing suddenly failed. Undoubtedly, he went to another theatre housing a stock company and told the manager—a beautiful lie about his long experience as leading man for a Canadian company. The manager believed his story and gave him a job. In a short time he was playing the juvenile lead and so firmly established himself that he was taken by the company on a tour.

Then everything seemed to break wrong, and he found himself turning to motion picture work as a means of livelihood. The "motion picture work" consisted of extra parts in various films. Realizing that he would have considerable difficulty in getting recognition submerged as an extra. In mob scenes, Neil started pulling a few strings, first registering with an agency that had considerable influence with various prominent motion picture producers.

In a few weeks Neil was called to meet D. W. Griffith, who was looking for a leading man for his new picture, "The White Rose." Mr. Griffith made a test of Neil and told him that he would be notified in a few days if everything was O. K. Two days after the test was made Neil read that the D. W. Griffith company had left for Bermuda to start "The White Rose." Neil thought the jig was up so far as getting the part was concerned.

To further heighten Hamilton's sorrows there was a sudden slump in motion picture production in New York and Neil thought he would have to give up his career. When things looked their blackest Hamilton received a cable from Griffith to come to Bermuda immediately to play the role he had been tested for. Neil played the part so well that he was signed to a long term contract by Mr. Griffith.

Next came the role of Nathan Holden in Griffith's "America." Herbert Brenon saw him in that role and arranged with Mr. Griffith to have him play in "The Side Show of Life."
Hamilton's part in this picture gives the public its first glimpse of Neil in "regular" clothes. In "The White Rose" Hamilton played the role of a poor grocer boy, while in "America" Neil portrayed a Revolutionary War character.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily's Squeaky Wheel

Copyright, 1924, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate
(By Howard R. Garis)

Down at the seashore, the next day after he had helped Johnnie and Billie Bushytail build the sand house, Uncle Wiggily awakened in the sea-side bungalow, where he boarded with Nurse Jane Puzzy Wuzzy.

"Well, what are you going to do to-day?" asked the muskrat lady, as she curled her whiskers in front of the shiny silver water pitcher. For being a muskrat lady, she had whiskers.

"I shall walk down the sandy beach and look for an adventure," said Mr. Longears.

"I hope no lobster tries to get you, as one did yesterday," said Miss Puzzy Wuzzy.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the bunny gentleman. "I played a good trick on that lobster, all right. And those of you who read yesterday's story know what the trick was."

Uncle Wiggily put on his golf suit with me a little while. I'm so lonesome."

"What do you want me to do?" asked Uncle Wiggily, who felt sorry for the little orphan rabbit, for she had no father or mother.

"Help me cast sand in my little wheelbarrow," cried Bunty, clapping her paws. "I've got a nice little red wheelbarrow! It's behind the big rock!" She wheeled the barrow over the sand.

"Squeak! Squeak! Squeak!" went the wheel, for it was very rusty.

"Oh, what a terrible noise!" cried Uncle Wiggily, covering his ears with his paws.

"What noise?" asked Bunty.

"That squeaky wheel on your sand barrow," said the rabbit uncle.

"I must oil it for you."

Bunty wheeled the barrow a little farther.

"Squeak! Squeak-que! Squeak!" went the wheel.

FIRST STEPS IN GARDEN MAKING

Some Seasonal Suggestions for Enthusiasts Who Are Planning to Re-make Old Gardens or Lay Out New Ones This Year

By JOHN HUTCHISON, F.R.H.S.

First let it be thoroughly understood—now that garden building time is approaching and home owners are beginning to make plans for Fall improvements—that a garden cannot be made in a year or in two years—that is, a really permanent and beautiful garden. A good splash of color may be produced within a few weeks by the use of annual plants but this, after all, does not constitute a garden.

Usually one comes into possession of a garden already made. Then, of course, it is a case of remodeling it as close to one's ideal as possible. Then again, one sometimes becomes owner of a place which has never been cultivated. Then one may work one's will without expending that uneasy feeling which always accompanies the severe alteration of an established garden.

In the first flush of possession, the true gardener lives in unalloyed happiness. He is at least going to have the garden of his dreams, the garden that he has been thinking of and planning for years. But doubts and fears gradually make their appearance as he surveys the lot or lots at his disposal. The lot is too long, or too short, or too narrow and generally too small. The surroundings are not quite what he would have desired. The "garden of his dreams" should have a framing of beautiful foliage, and a view in the middle distance. The dingy wooden box of a fence and the yellow house with the red shutters next door do not seem to be capable of conversion into a charming boundary of greenery, and as for the middle distance, feature there simply is no middle distance worth considering.

The wise man reconciles himself to the fact that a garden can seldom be successfully laid out to a ready-made pattern. Each plot of ground must be dealt with according to its possibilities and on its merits, so he abandons the idea of the garden of his dreams and forms a more suitable idea.

ORIGINAL PLANS

It is often a temptation to endeavor to copy a garden that one has admired but it will be found better to banish preconceived ideas and work on an original basis, because, after all, one's garden should reflect one's individuality.

No two persons would treat the same plot of ground in the same way. Consequently no hard and fast rules can be laid down. All one can do is to point out how various things should be done and leave the matter of the general scheme to the designer.

Take the matter of herbaceous borders and rock gardens which are so popular to-day, and it would be found difficult to find two representations of either that would be quite similar. The making of either an herbaceous border or a rock garden leaves unlimited scope for the display of individual taste and each gives opportunities to choose subjects from a vast number of suitable plants.

If the designer loves method and order in all his things he will have a formal garden. The flower beds will be laid out with mathematical precision, and a vast amount of attention will be paid to details. On the other hand, he who does not order his life by rule and takes a broader view of things generally will design his garden in the landscape style and will favor lawns shaded by trees. There are others who will like to have winding paths with nooks and little surprise views. Some again want plenty of color and they will make broad beds and borders in which may be displayed plants of the richest colors in bold masses.

COMBINATION GARDENS

Whatever style is decided upon the general idea will have to be varied to conform with the architecture of the dwelling and the limitation of the size of the garden. A formal garden looks well with a formal style of house while a more informal style of garden is more in keeping with the present day cottage or bungalow. There is no reason why part of the garden should not be formal and another part informal providing the two features are blended into one another in such a way that they do not clash. Indeed, it is often necessary to do this because the nature of the ground changes within the limits of the garden plot. Part of the land may be flat while another part is rocky, in which case the two forms may be combined very effectively in the same garden.

Whatever the size of the ground, the gardener should first form a clear and concise idea of his intentions before commencing the work of garden making, otherwise a very unsatisfactory patchwork garden will be the result. No garden should be made without a definite, detailed plan.

CONSERVING TREES

In a place like Victoria, where there are so often good trees growing on the ground, grave consideration should be given to the removal of any of them and not one should be cut down until it is assured that the garden will be improved by its removal. It is better if you have fine oaks or other trees on your ground to try and construct your garden in such a way that these very trees will become a feature of the finished garden. Remember that it takes only a few minutes to cut down a tree but it takes many years to grow one.

The writer knows of a place on the Mainland where a house was upwards of $50,000 was built upon a piece of land beautifully situated and on which were growing many valuable trees of great age. The first thing the owner did was to cut the whole lot down, construct what he believed to be what an expert from Chicago told him was an Italian garden, but what is really a cement tank with a brick wall all around it decorated by dozens of small shrubs and young trees supplied from a nursery. The result is an outrage as may be imagined. Had the natural trees been retained a very beautiful place would have been the result. As it is it will be fifty years at least before the place is clothed so to speak. This horrible example is mentioned simply to point out that whatever is naturally growing on the ground in the shape of a tree should be kept if it will work in with the garden's design.

Any trees on or near the boundary of a garden should be given particular consideration as they are often useful in closing out an ugly view and will save the time necessary to grow a young tree.

It is a mistake to suppose that roses will not grow and do well beside oak trees. Nearly all the climbing roses will, when they once get a start, hold their own with any oak. In fact, the oak will suffer rather than the rose because a good climbing rose will send its tap root down fifteen or twenty feet deeper than the oak.

FORETELLS WEATHER BY USE OF FORMULA

Toronto, Aug. 11.—Weather forecasting may be placed on a mathematical basis, if the theory of J. Bjerknes, of the Geophysics Institute of Bergen, Norway, can be applied on a practical scale. The scientist, who reported his researches to the physics section of the British Association here to-day, has discovered after making numerous temperature and barometer observations, that an area of low pressure is due to the conflict of two oppositely directed air currents, one hot and the other cold. "Initially, each current occupies about one half of the area covered by the depression," he said. "The area of the cold air next to the ground is always increasing, and finally it embraces the whole of the depression in the lower layers.

"The warm air covers at the ground a correspondingly decreasing space. As the depression develops, air from the warm sector will escape upwards and spread into the higher layers." The result is a wind, determined in direction and velocity by the temperatures and masses of the moving air currents. The motion slows down as soon as there is only a cold air supply available for the ascending motion.

"The temperature distribution in the depression thus gives useful indications concerning the expected development," Mr. Bjerknes explained.

"The resulting air currents when the opposing hot and cold areas come into contact, can be formulated mathematically as an equation giving the speed of the different masses of air relatively to one another, he showed.

CUSTOMS FIGURES SHOW MARKED INCREASE IN VOLUME OF TRADE

Figures for the First Six Months of Year Indicate Steady Gain Over Preceding Period; in February Exports From Victoria Totalled $424,890, and Imports $640,527.

A considerable increase in the total volume of business done is shown in a summary of collections of the Dominion Customs and Excise offices of Victoria for the first seven months of this year. With few exceptions the figures show a marked increase over those of the year previous, with imports, however, still leading exports by a very wide margin.

Collected from import duty, excise taxes, excise duty, and all sources the takings of the local office by months between January 1, 1924 to August 8 and the 1923 comparisons are as follows:

	1924	1923
January	$260,211.43	$192,254.08

RUSSIAN FURS FOR AMERICAN MARKET

Thousands of Dollars in Furs Are Coming Out of Asia

Fur traders are making fortunes from Russian furs and exploiting the resources of Russia in this direction, in much the same way as did the early traders in Canada. The American continent over a century ago. In those, the early days of Canadian history, when Indians roved at will through the unbordered forests and the great wildernesses, of what is now settled land, lay unexplored and full of thriving life for the coming of the hunters, there were fortunes to be found on the plains. There were many furs shipped to Europe. So many, in fact, that markets were flooded with the precious goods. Canada's great forests were despoiled of much of their bearing wealth. Otter, mink, gray squirrel, marmot, sable and other animals were trapped and slain by the hundreds. Skins were roughly cured in America and then shipped to the slow, ponderous transports of the day to the European markets. There they were made into soft, warm, satin-lined coats for the people of rank and wealth to buy and play with. That was the beginning and end of the otter, the mink, the squirrel, the marmot and sable. Now, in the far reaches of Russian soil, where the country resembles Canada's northland to a considerable extent, trappers are collecting the furs of the otter, the mink, the marmot, the sable and the squirrel. They send them to China, Japan and to the ever-changing market for buyers in the East are using parcel post for quick delivery from China and Japan. These shipments comprise otter, mink, gray squirrel, marmot, sable, etc., a large amount being trapped in Russia.
